

12 stories immerse you in heartfelt little worlds, from the Midwest to the Middle East

“A lush, shimmering collection, at once globe-trotting and far-a-field, and also somehow as intimate and quotidian as any small hometown... incredible range, wisdom, and empathy.”

Nickolas Butler

author of Shotgun Lovesongs

⚡ Editor's Pick

“An enthralling, empathetic collection of stories about attempting to make peace with the past while facing uncertain futures... fresh insights on familiar themes, including the way trauma and a lack of genuine connection can change people.”

Publishers Weekly's BookLife

“With the insight of a world traveler and the heart of a kind Midwestern neighbor... dark, engrossing stories find flickers of hope in a disorienting world... realistic dialogue and an empathetic heart for Midwestern folks on the harder edge of ‘working class.’”

J. Ryan Stradal

author of The Lager Queen of Minnesota

Kevin Revolinski is the author of 16 books, including the travel memoir The Yogurt Man Cometh and many Midwestern guidebooks. Stealing Away is his first book of fiction. He has written for The New York Times and Chicago Tribune and is a frequent guest on Wisconsin Public Radio. He lives in Madison, Wisconsin.

BACK BURNER BOOKS

KevinRevolinski.com